Winter Time is Carnival Time in Banff

Banff in winter time is fairyland. Shafts of the sun strike the white snow-covered mountains and valleys of the Canadian Rockies, changing them into a landscape of flashing iridescence. Colors—blue, red, green and purple—dance over the scene, as gaily costumed devotees of the snow shoe, the skate and the ski move in the pastel of the great outdoors.

Fancy skaters swing gracefully into intricate figures on the rinks. Ski jumpers thrill the spectators with their marvellous leaps through the air from the ski jump on the top of a nearby mountain. Ski-jorers dash down the Bow River behind fleet mountain ponies. Blanket-coated snow-shoe trampers take the trail to the snowy woodlands. In the evening, the brilliant scene is softened by the silver gleam of the moon.

Winter time is carnival time in Banff. February 3rd to 17th has been set for the 1926 Winter Carnival, and Mrs. Basil Gardom has been chosen as the fair Queen. A splendid palace of glittering ice, sparkling with myriads of bright colored electric lights is being built for the chosen beauty. With true regal pomp and splendor she will be crowned and seated on her throne as the culminating triumph of the carnival.

Trains pull into the station at Banff. Passengers on their way west stop off to disport themselves in the snowy, gay little town. Passengers on their way east delay long enough to see the famous ski jumpers breaking world records. Passengers from both east and west with Banff as their objective, and snow shoes, skates and skis in their luggage, hurry to attend the festivities in honor of the carnival queen.

Messrs Bowen and McLeod from the Wainwright Board called on the Council regarding the forming of a large Hospital District with site of proposed Hospital at Wainwright. This District to take in M. D. Gilt Edge, part of M. D. Vale, all of M. D. Battle River and M. D. Ribstone. Speakers could be obtained to address and explain the particulars more fully to the rate-payers by requesting the Board of Health at Edmonton. Messrs Bowen and McLeod very forcefully and clearly explained the great benefits that a hospital would be to the District. The following resolution was read.

"To request the Department of Public Health to send down a speaker from your Department to explain to the Rate-payers of the District, regarding the forming of a large Hospital District. But it is strictly understood that by inviting the Provincial Government Speaker here that the Council do not obligate themselves Ratepayers. The proposed site of the Hospital to be at Wainwright. For the resolution Clrs. Meurin, Lang, Tunney and Sewell, against Clr. McCluskey. Resolution Carried.

Re Vacancy in Division No. 2: Moved by Cr. Meurin that the Secretary write Department of Municipal Affairs in view of the fact that the year is drawing to a close and should we hold an election now the new Clr. would only be able to sit at two meetings, and Division No. 2, would again have to run an election at the close of the year, therefore we would like permission to carry (Continued on page five) Eclipsing Ill October monthly production records in its history. the Ford Motor Company of Canada. Limited, produced a total of 9,200 finished cars during October 1925, when 5,028 cars were manufactured.

On the present month's production, more than 5,000 were for export. In October 1923, 3,046 were sent abroad. The figures given are for the main plant at Ford City, Ontario, and the eight assembly plants throughout Canada.

Ordinarily October is one of the dullest seasons of the year in the automobile industry generally. Increase at this time is based on splendid crop conditions, officials say, coupled with the popularity of new models.

On the whole, it's a good thing that we don't think of those wonderfully cutting repartees until next day.

SURPRISE PARTY

A most enjoyable gathering was held in Fram school on Thursday November 5, when Mr. and Mrs. Anton Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Reichelt were the guests of their friends and neighbours at a 'Welcome Home' surprise party. Both couples have been away from the district for a few years, and the party was an expression of the delight of their friends that they decided to return to our district once more.

The evening was spent in cards and music, and, after lunch Mr. Jas Loy, on behalf of the assembled friends, presented the guests of honor with cases of stainless silver knives and forks.

"Don't You Hear The East A-calling?"

The Immemorial East has from the beginning of time exercised its fascination on the West. Color movement, mystery, strange creeds and stranger races; the cradle of civilizations with mighty monuments of the past to attest their reality; customs that are so old that they seem new; costumes that look as though their wearers had stepped out of some masquerade, and even no costumes at all; immense multitudes speaking strange languages; the whole making into a picture that is so alluring, so utterly different, so incomprehensible to the Westerner that it seems as if he had been transported into another planet where only the stars, the sun, moon and sky remind him that he is still standing on mother earth. Add to all this the fact that the North Temperate Zone of America is left thousands of miles behind and you step into the land of eternal summer, where you have the widest range of emotional and climatic change that this world has to offer.

This shedding of every-day usage and spectacle is provided by the "Round the World Cruise" on the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Scotland which sails from New York, December 3rd next. For the following 128 days there is a never ending and shifting panorama of utterly new things presented to the passenger on this cruise. What he or she has before only read of in books and seen in illustrations un-rolls itself before the astonished eye. Thoroughly competent guides tell of the wonders of each place visited and conduct to every point of interest. There is no let-up in the continually changing novelties presented and the passenger stores up in the short period of four months enough memories to last a life time.

Some few of these are presented in the above illustration. The good ship Empress of Scotland is shown as she is just starting her long voyage. Then comes that jewel in sight—the Taj Mahal,—bathed in sunshine, the concrete proof of a mighty conquest and of a civilization that has passed, yet intact today as when it was first completed hundreds of years ago. Yet another scene is the bazaar of a small Indian city where the elephant that typifies India is seen kneeling to receive his master who is attired as a Rajah.

These are but a few high lights in a voyage that is crammed with new delights each day. If one were to undertake this voyage on his own initiative it would cost thousands of dollars and it is not at all likely that he could take in all that is offered on the Empress cruise in double the time. Further, he would certainly lose the atmosphere of luxury, efficiency and bonhomie which are the special characteristics of a voyage taken in common with men and women of his own class and outlook on life.

SOME ADVENTURES

WITH BEARS

by C. V. TENCH

Old hunters have a saying: "You never can tell what a bear will do," and, as the Author points out, these animals possess a strongly-developed individuality. Mr. Tench tells a number of stories—for the truth of which he vouches—illustrating the quaint ways of bears.

Knocking about in the wilder parts of Alberta and British Columbia, one hears many yarns told in settlers' and trappers' cabins and around camp fires concerning the ways and habits of the wild beasts of Western Canada. One also learns a great deal from personal experience.

By far the most interesting of the wooded area are the bears—the black, brown, and the mighty grizzly. Now everyone who has had much to do with wild animals knows that their characters have just as strong an individuality as those of human beings. This trait is very strongly developed among bears, each of whom seems to be law unto himself. It is an undoubted fact that no two bears will do exactly the same thing in the same circumstances—and this is so well known that it has given rise to the saying: "You never can tell what a bear will do."

I propose in this article to set down a few stories about the odd behaviour of bears. I have been at considerable pains to sift out my information, and the facts may be accepted as correct.

At Jasper Park, Alberta, a tourist resort in the Rockies, the wild animals are protected by law and, consequently many of them have lost all dread of man, and it is quite a common sight to see the "children of the wilderness" moving about among the tents and houses of the visitors. The bears in particular have taken advantage of this protection, and many of them have discovered that man instead of being something to be feared, is quite a useful friend, for his presence means tit-bits—sugar, syrup, bacon, and other delicacies—that tickle Bruin's palate. In fact, so bold have some of the bears become they are a positive nuisance. A man who wanted his photograph taken while feeding a big black bear found this fact out for himself. He was spending his vacation at Jasper Park, and for several days had been trying to coax a splendid specimen of the black bear to accept tit-bits from his outstretched hand. This particular animal, however, was shy, the most he would do was to pick up what the visitor left lying on the ground when he retreated to his tent. Concealed in the tent, with his camera ready, was the tourist's partner; and, after several days of fruitless efforts he got thoroughly tired of the by-play 'tween man and bear and decided to take a hand himself. One day, while his friend stood a short distance from the tent tossing pieces of bacon and sugar to the bear, the camera man busied himself with spreading a generous supply of syrup upon biscuits. These he tossed through the open tent-fly round his partner's feet. The smell of the syrup completely overcame Bruin's waning dread of man, and with a low growl he made a shambling rush for the biscuits. The man who wanted his photograph taken, unaware of his friend's stratagem, thought the bear was charging him. He forgot all about his picture, and with one wild yell started frantically up the side of an adjacent mountain. With his camera in one hand and the can of syrup in the other, the other man dashed out of the tent and shouted to him so stop, but by this time the fugitive was out of earshot.

The spectacle of his partner running for his life was too much for the camera man; he flung himself on the ground, doubled up with laughter, and completely ignored Bruin, who was still nosing round for biscuits. The bear, however, had smelt the can of syrup. There came another growling, shambling onrush of six hundred pounds of hungry bear—and with a howl the photographer fled to his partner! His objective—the can of syrup—obtained, Bruin did not even turn his head to see of the camera man overtook his friend. The syrup finished, the bear explored the tent for other dainties making a sad mess of both the tent and the camping equipment. The two men, dishevelled and panting, watching from a safe distance, meanwhile decided that they would not try to make friends with any more bears.

Next we come to the story of Tom Shere, who earns his living at trapping, has to tell—how he killed a black bear with a 22 rifle last summer. Having spent over a quarter of a century in the woods, trapping in winter and doing a little prospecting among the mountains in the summer time, old Tom has had many encounters with bears; and he was firmly convinced that they would always rather run away from a man than fight him. Since this little happening, however, he has changed his mind. He was camped by the side of a lake and one bright summer morning getting tired of salt pork and meat in general, he clambered into his canoe, paddled a short distance out from the shore, and cast his line in the hope of catching some jack fish.

As he fished he noticed a black bear prowling around the margin of the lake looking for the eggs of the breeding water-fowl, bears dearly love more or less addled bird eggs. Old Tom was not particularly interested in Bruin, for at this season of the year the fur is out of condition and practically valueless.

Gradually the bear worked its way round the lake until it arrived at the rough log landing-stage Tom had built for his own convenience. After splashing through the marshy borders of the lake Bruin found the landing-stage a nice comfortable place upon which to stretch out, sun himself, and dry his feet and belly. Still Tom didn't worry; he knew the bear would move on as soon as he approached when ready to land.

At last the trapper made up his mind he had enough fish, and moved slowly toward the landing place. Instead of shambling off Bruin first grunted and then (Continued on page three)

A Poet in the Mountains

From the pen of Michael Hargadon, of Montreal, a true and authentic poet, says J. B. Dollard in the "Catholic Register", comes this pretty volume "Among the Mountains," containing seven beautiful poems on the Canadian Rockies. Titles of the poems are: "Banff," "Lake Louise," "Moraine Lake," "Emerald Lake," "Gardner," "Waterfall," and "Camp Song." Above illustration is of Lake Louise in the Canadian Rockies.

What better description, for instance, could be given of Lake Louise than the following stanza, taken at random from the poem of that name:

"In oval framing of the fairest hue
And best designing that the maker knew,
This Lake is God's best picture;
That is why

He hung it on the mountains at the sky;
He wished it near, that sometimes
He might show

Here is the concluding stanza from a poem on Banff:

There is no grander place to live,
And when through death we go,
It would be sweet if we could come
To dwell along the Bow.

With all the luxuries of earth
And much that heaven supplies,

What more than Banff would one require

To make a paradise?

A poem on a waterfall contains these lines:

Never old your music ringing
Since the earth was planned,
Moving always to the swinging
Of the mighty master wand
In the Great Conductor's hand.

Pleasantly, too, does the poet enumerate other topographical charms of the Canadian Rockies, and the names bear with them an alluring music peculiarly their own: "Who could forget the Baloo Pass, Asulkan Valley view; The Overlook, the Cougar Vale The caves of Nakimu, The Cascade Summer House, the creeks,

That singing, leaping go;
And fairylands we see afoot,
On horse, or tally-ho."

Sixteen beautifully coloured prints of superb mountain scenery accompany the text of this lovely booklet.

It makes an appropriate gift for Christmas or indeed any time, and will be treasured by all lovers of the Canadian Rocky Mountains.

"Among the Mountains," by Michael Hargadon, is published by the Southam Press, 1070 Bleury St., Montreal. Price 50 cents.

stood up on his hind legs to take a good look at this strange object moving towards him.
"Shoo!" Beat it, you old son-of-a-gun!" Uneasily conscious of the fact that his only weapons were a fishline, a paddle, and a little 22 rifle, old Tom yelled out the words at the top of his lungs.
Still balanced on his hind legs, the bear's reply was a non-committal "Woof!"
Tom ceased paddling as he spoke. Then he suddenly got to work again, but this time away from shore, for with another rumbling deep-chested "Woof!" Bruin dropped on to four paws and made as if to take to the water after him.

"Wanta fight, eh?" growled Tom, who from many years of living alone had acquired the habit of talking to himself in times of stress. "All right! No blanket-bland bear's going to keep me paddlin' w'en I want to land."

His fighting spirit aroused by his own remarks, he checked his backward speed and once more paddled ahead. Still the bear didn't budge; he merely waited; a ferocious glint in his beady black eyes. Again Tom checked the progress of the canoe a few feet from the landing stage. Dropping the paddle, he picked up the little rifle, and, thinking that the noise would scare the bear away, fired several shots in the water. Bruin cocked his head interestedly; then, once more rearing up in his hind legs, he emitted a roar that almost blew old Tom out of the canoe.

The more scared Tom became the more angry he grew. He knew that a 22 bullet would hardly penetrate the thick hide; on more than one occasion he had seen the thick, wedge-shaped skulls of bears deflect bullets from powerful rifles, with no more damage than a slight scalp wound. But this brute was denying him the right to land, and he was both hot and hungry. He lowered his rifle and picking up the paddle, urged the canoe to within a few feet of the bear. Bruin growled and leaned toward him threateningly. "It's you or me, old timer," said Tom, and with the words he grabbed up the 22, took steady aim at the small baleful-looking eye nearest to him, and pressed the trigger. It was the shot of a lifetime, for with a deep sigh the bear rolled over stone dead—the bullet had reached the brain!

Our next story concerns a brown bear and a mule when it comes downright obstinacy and sheer bad temper when roused, there is very little to choose between the two animals, and both beasts well know how to use the weapons Nature has provided them with.
The one thing which fills the hearts of all wild animals with stark terror is fire. For days a terrific blaze had raged over a certain section of southern British Columbia; the wild things had become crazed, rushing madly in any direction to escape the awful flames and fumes which destroyed all means of sustenance and seared eyes, lungs and nostrils with horrible pains. Fleeing before the dread enemy, a brown bear found a safe haven in the pasture fields of a ranch protected from the conflagration by the fireguards built by the rancher. From the veranda of his house the owner saw the hurried arrival of the bear and felt glad that the poor scared brute had found a temporary refuge. Although there were several rifles in the house, he did not feel like shooting a beast which sought sanctuary on his ranch, and interestedly watched Bruin shambling across the field.

Perhaps the bear was half blinded by the smoke and fumes; perhaps it had made up its mind that it was going to travel in a straight line, regardless of obstacles; but, anyway, this is what happened. Continuing on its way—head down, tongue lolling out—it suddenly barged full tilt into an apparently harmless old mule peacefully grazing in the centre of the pasture. The mule stopped eating just long enough to bring its powerful hind hoofs into action. Bruin not only found his progress suddenly arrested but himself hurled back several yards. Groggily it got to its feet again and looked round for the cause of the earthquake. A few feet away it saw a long-eared harmless-looking beast contentedly munching grass. A few seconds before the bear had been a thoroughly scared animal; now, in a twinkling, he became a ferocious wild beast, as, with a terrific roar he hurled himself at the mule.

The mule stopped eating, wagged its long ears, and neatly sidestepped the charge. Recovering itself, the bear charged again. This time the mule was not quite quick enough, and four sharp claws tore a furrow along his flank. Again the bear made a charge, but now the mule had awakened to the fact that he was one of the principals in a real "scrap." Realizing that the best defensive is a strong offensive, he made one of the backward charges for which his kind are noted. He met Bruin half-way, and his terrible hoofs caught the bear—one—two—three—below the belt before Bruin had discovered that a mule can travel backwards or forwards with almost equal facility. The bear went down for the "count"; the mule continued its interrupted grazing. The watching rancher decided to get a rifle after all, in case the bear was minded to continue the fight; but as he emerged from the house with his Winchester he saw a thoroughly cowed Bruin shambling dejectedly away from the scene of conflict at his best speed. My last story concerns two men and a grizzly—the mighty "King of the Rockies." This occurrence might easily have ended very differently, because although a grizzly will not, as a rule, go out of its way to attack a man, neither will it take any trouble to avoid him. The story also points a little moral; in "grizzly" country hunters should not proceed very far from camp without their rifles.

At the end of the day two hunters, whom we will call Jack and Fred, piled their rifles and knives in the tent and, taking axes set out to cut a supply of firewood. Moving here and there to select dry sticks, they found when they set out to return to the tent heavily burdened, that they were over a hundred yards away. Dusk was falling, and as they approached their camp they noticed some animal moving close by. Thinking that it was probably a skulking lynx, they shouted in unison to scare it away. Judge of their surprise when, instead of making off, the animal suddenly started towards them. As it approached closer they saw it properly, and with one accord they dropped their burdens of wood

The Westminster Ladies Auxiliary held a largely attended and enthusiastic meeting on Thursday last. Final arrangements were made for holding their Annual Sale of Work which will be held in the I.O.O.F. hall Saturday afternoon December 5, commencing at 2 o'clock. Afternoon tea will be served. A fish pond will be the usual attraction for the children. The C.G.I.T. girls are to have a table of home-made candy and dressed dolls. The dressing of the dolls is being done by the girls themselves. There will also be tables of plain and fancy sewing and dainty and attractive hand-made articles suitable for Xmas gifts. Home cooking will have a special table of delicious cakes, pies and other delicacies.

SUCCESS OF WEED CLEANING MACHINE

Demonstrations of the perfected weed cleaning machine which is being actively sponsored by Hon. Geo. Hoadley, Minister of Agriculture, and his department, have taken place within the past few weeks.

During the past week or two, however, several have seen the machine in operation at Oliver near Edmonton, and at other points and have declared their entire satisfaction with it.

The machine, which is considerably improved and lightened over the first model is attached to the top of the grain separator, and cleans the grain free of weed seeds and small grain, before it goes to the bin or wagon.

The device weighs some 650 pounds and is driven by a belt from the beater shaft. Only 1 to 1 1/2 horse power is necessary to drive the machine and it has a capacity sufficient to handle the run of grain from any make of separator now in operation in the west. The excessive amount of vibration which was an undesirable factor in the first model of the invention, has now been successfully overcome. It is expected that the provincial department will direct the marketing of the machine next season on a basis that will make it easily possible for separator men to finance.

The invention is declared by grain men and farmers to be the greatest step forward yet taken in the control of weeds on the farms and the reduction of dockage in the marketing of grain. In the demonstrations conducted the machine has reduced dockage in wheat from the usual amount of 5 to 8 per cent to less than one per cent. This would mean the saving in dockage alone of anything from 6 to 14 cents a bushel according to grade. A saving of 6 cents a bushel alone on the entire wheat crop of the province would mean the saving of from five to six million of dollars to farmers on the basis of the estimate of the 1925 crop. In addition to this saving there is, of course the saving in freight on the dockage, which costs the western farmers thousands of dollars every year. Furthermore, the operation of the machine makes it possible for the farmers to keep his screenings right on his own farm for feeding purposes, and this in turn, prevents the spread of weed seeds which has been responsible for the growth of the weed menace in the west. The feeding value of the screenings is estimated as high as 50 cents per bushel in some cases.

Next April and May look a long way off. It may be, but it will come quicker than we figure on at present.

The amount of work a farmer can get done in those two important months depends on himself and his horsepower.

A horse infested with bots all winter is in weak condition for spring work.

Sur-shot will sure get rid of them. One dose will do a horse.

One dose costs you 40 cents and a few minutes work. Sur-shot is the best investment you can make. A new and fresh supply just arrived.

Mr. Bowen called on his cousin. He was feeling very hungry. After a long while, and wishing for his dinner, he asked the little son when they had their midday meal. "Usually at twelve," replied the boy. "but when we have visitors we wait until they've gone."

An Englishman, on his first visit to America, arrived at a small town, and said to the first man he met: "Do I have to see a doctor before I get a drink here?"

"No, after," answered the man

"Ah! my man," said the curate to the man he had just met in the train, "don't you wish you could have your time all over again?"

The man had just done ten years. The curate arrived at his destination minus a collar and plus a black eye.

Makes 20th Annual Hunting Trip

Sir Thomas Esmonde, Bart., of Dublin, Ireland, and the first Senator of the Irish Free State to visit Canada, has just enjoyed his twentieth annual hunting and fishing trip in the Dominion. With Lady Esmonde he is at present moose hunting near Saint John, N.B.

During a fortnight spent in British Columbia Sir Thomas and Lady Esmonde enjoyed the hospitality of one of the Canadian Pacific Railway's camps at Bull River, where Sir Thomas secured the big stag shown in the picture. He is known throughout the British Empire as a crack shot and keen angler, and while on this continent will procure the eggs of land-locked salmon with which the Irish Free State fisheries will replenish the lakes and streams of the South of Ireland. Lady Esmonde before her recent marriage to Sir Thomas was Miss Anna Frances Levins, of New York.

For both hunting and fishing Sir Thomas proclaims Canada to be his favorite holiday retreat, and with Lady Esmonde expects to come to the Dominion again next year.

SOME ADVENTURES WITH BEARS

and instinctively grasped their axes tighter, for the beast shambling towards them was a huge grizzly!

'Don't run Fred!' Jack, the older and more experienced man, whispered the warning to his partner.

At the sound of his voice the bear stopped and reared up its hind legs to better glimpse these strange creatures. Over seven feet it towered as it stood erect, a sight to take the heart out of men even if armed with powerful rifles—and the two men only had axes!

Jack took command. "Step quietly, one on either side," he whispered, "If it chases one of us, the other must run for a rifle."

Fred nodded agreement and as silently as possible the two partners took a few steps away from one another. No sooner had they moved than the grizzly dropped on to four feet, gave vent to a grunting roar, and then charged.

"He means fight!" Jack shouted to Fred, and then the great brute was upon them. It reached Fred first, Fred made a desperate lunge with his axe, but a backward swipe of one powerful paw caught him under the arm and sent him sailing through the air to crash unconscious fifteen feet away. The fraction of a second during which the bear was turned away from him gave Jack his chance. With every ounce of strength he possessed he brought his keen-edged axe down on the grizzly's back. With a terrific roar of mingled pain and rage, the bear swung round on him. Again the man struck, but the bear met the blow with a counter-blow, and the axe went whirling away. Then Jack did the only thing possible—he turned and ran for the tent and a rifle. The bear tried to follow, but the blow upon its spine had temporarily paralyzed its hindquarters. Rumbling in his mad haste, Jack at last found a rifle and ammunition and, emerging from the tent, found that the bear had almost recovered from the blow and was shambling towards the tent. Thankful that it chose to follow him instead of his unconscious partner, Jack raised the heavy rifle and fired, but his hand was unsteady from the excitement of the fight, and he missed with the first two shots. Gritting his teeth he dropped on one knee and waited—waited until he could not miss the only vulnerable spot presented to him in the uncertain light, the open red mouth with its gleaming teeth. Then, seeing his chance, he pressed the trigger again—once, twice, three times; and each shot went home.

After making certain that the bear was dead, Jack hastened to his fallen partner, but even as he reached him Fred began to scramble to his feet. Luckily no bones were broken; he had merely been winded and stunned from falling on his head. It is certain however, that Jack and Fred will never venture far from camp again when out in the wilds without carrying a rifle or revolver.

HOLLAND WANTS HORSE MEAT

Following negotiations which have been in great progress for some time as to the possibilities of a market for horse meat in Europe, Mr. George Hoadley, Minister of Agriculture, has received a cablegram from Antwerp, Holland, asking for a sample shipment of horses. The price offered f.o.b. Antwerp is six cents a pound, and the request is for a sample shipment of 2,000 lbs. Mr. Hoadley is arranging to have the shipment forwarded as soon as possible. The development of such a market would enable Alberta to dispose of a good deal of scrub stock to advantage.

NEW DEPUTY OF MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS

Owing to extreme ill health, the Deputy Minister of Municipal Affairs of the provincial Government, J. H. Lamb, has retired, and his place has been taken by W. D. Spence, who for some years has been Tax Commissioner.

A judge may be a man of few words, but he is not always a man of short sentences.

SEVEN SEASONS WORK IN WINTER STEER FEEDING

(Experimental Farms Note)

The average profit for seven seasons work in winter steer feeding at the Scott Experimental Station has been $15.12 per head per season after deducting all costs of feed and shipping.

The steers are usually purchased in November and started on a light grain ration with straw and roughage. Other lots have been fed other roughage with straw such as silage, sheaves, and prairie wool but good profits have been realized from lots getting straw only for roughage. The grain ration consists of crushed oats and barley and the quantity is usually about three pounds per head per day at first and is very gradually increased until they are on full feed. If the grain is not eaten in twenty minutes it should be removed from the trough and the quantity reduced.

Dehorned blocky steers are the most profitable feeders and if all one breed and colour they will be much more attractive to the buyer when put on the market. Steers from 12-18 months old at the time of purchase have been slightly more profitable than those one year older when sold on the Winnipeg market but the larger steer is more profitable for export. The steers at Scott are usually sold in March or April.

Write to the Scott Experiment Station for pamphlet No 17 New series re steer feeding.

The doctor told Jones not to stay out late at night.

"Do you think the night air is bad for me?" asked Jones.

"No," was the reply. "It's the excitement after getting home that hurts you."

NOTICE

To: WILLIAM GIGG, formerly of Chauvin, Alberta.

TAKE NOTICE that Jean Gigg through her solicitor, T. H. Saul, Chauvin, Alberta, has commenced an action against you in the Supreme Court of Alberta, in which she claims against you the dissolution of the marriage celebrated between you and her at Inverness, Quebec, on the 2nd day of February 1921, and alimony, on the grounds of adultery and desertion.

AND FURTHER TAKE NOTICE that you are required on or before the 26th day of December, 1925, to file in my office in the Court House at Edmonton, Alberta, a statement of defence or a demand that notice of any application to be made in the action be given you and serve a copy of same upon Plaintiff's Solicitor, and in default of your so doing judgement may be given against you without further notice.

THIS NOTICE is published pursuant to the Order of A. Y. Blain, Esq., K. C. Master in Chambers at Edmonton, dated the 12th day of November, 1925.

"R. P. WALLACE"

Clerk of the Supreme Court. Approved M. B.

Here and There

"Canada has the greatest opportunity of any community on the face of the earth," stated St. Loe Strachy, editor and proprietor of the London Spectator, in the course of a recent address before the Canadian Club. He stressed the advantages the country enjoyed in her large wheat area, electrical energy, wood pulp and mineral assets.

Between 20,000 and 25,000 men are expected to work in the forests of the Province of Quebec during the coming winter, according to the chief forester of the province. It is anticipated there will be a good season in the pulp and paper products, but that the cut of lumber will not be so heavy owing to the low price prevalent for sawn lumber.

Cordial relations between the ports of Quebec and Liverpool were emphasized recently by the exchange of cables by the respective Chief Magistrates of the two cities. The occasion was the Civic Week Celebration at Liverpool when the Lord Mayor, Thomas Dowd, sent Mayor Joseph Samson, of Quebec, greetings to which the latter responded.

A record for October weddings was established at the Windsor Station, Montreal, early in that month, when twenty couples invaded the Concourse on their way to Boston, Quebec, Ottawa and Toronto. Two of the bridegrooms were bounced following time-honored custom. It used to be the fashion to subject brides to this usage, but since the advent of short skirts the practice has been frowned upon.

Establishing what is easily a world record for movement of wheat, grain poured into Fort William and Port Arthur elevators at the rate of nearly thirty bushels a second for the whole of the 24 hours of October 5, from Canadian Pacific Railway cars. In all, 1,704 cars were unloaded during the day and each car carries an average load of 1,500 bushels, representing a total of 2,556,000 bushels.

Driving into stationary trains on level crossings seems to be a favorite sport on the part of a number of motorists judging by reports coming in recently from different sections. The latest is from Galt, where an automobile, in broad daylight, ran into a freight train consisting of 18 loaded and 15 empty cars standing in plain view on a crossing. Fortunately no one was hurt, but the instance is another of gross carelessness on the part of motorists.

The Grand Challenge Cup, emblematic of the First Aid championship of the entire system of the Canadian Pacific Railway, was won by the Weston Shops team, of Winnipeg, champions of the West, against McAdam, N.B., team, champions of the East and last year's winners, after a searching test of the two teams conducted at the Place Viger Hotel, Montreal, recently. The margin between the two teams was so narrow as to be in doubt to the last moment. Weston took 507 points out of a possible 672 and McAdam had 499.

Tourist traffic development throughout Canada has reached such proportions as to equal the value of a fairly good wheat crop, and such development has only just begun, is the opinion of Colonel Phil. Moore, of Yoho Valley, B.C., interviewed recently. He thought that an estimate of three hundred million dollars spent by tourists annually in Canada was not too high. Growth of interest in the Canadian Rockies was very noticeable and although the majority of tourists there were Americans, yet Canadians, too, were beginning to discover them, said the Colonel.

Each of us is an engineer of his own life.
